When the jury was being selected for the trial of this case each juror was sworn to answer questions and to the question "how far are your conscientious scruples as to the infliction of Capital punishment?" each juror responded that he had none. The Court therefore instructed the jury that if upon the evidence before them (subject to the instructions heretofore given) they are of opinion that the prisoner is the author of the murder of the first degree it is the sworn duty of the jury to say so.

CODE 1887.

Allowance to Jailor, and for Clothing.

SEC. 1895.—The allowance to the jailor for the maintenance and care of a inmate shall be fixed by the court in whose jail he is confined, not exceeding fifty cents for each day such inmate is kept and supported therein. No more shall be allowed for his clothing than thirty dollars a year. No such allowance shall be audited and paid unless it appear to the certificate of it that the jailor proved to the court that, immediately after the commitment of the inmate, and at each date in every two months thereafter, application was made by the board of directors of such of the systems for admission, and that such application was refused for want of room, or that such application was not continued because the admission of the inmate had been refused for some other cause than the want of room.

To a Jailor.

SEC. 1896.—For receiving a person in jail when first committed, 290.
For keeping and supporting him therein for each day, 291.
But when there are no more in there and less than ten prisoners in jail, for each, 292.
